

February 23, 2017

The Honorable Jeff Sessions
U.S. Department of Justice
Office of the Attorney General
950 Pennsylvania Ave., N.W.
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Attorney General:

We are lawyers and law professors who care deeply about the fair administration of justice in the United States.

An independent federal judiciary, in which judges have the power to decide cases and controversies that come before them and to interpret and apply the law in their best judgment, is a hallmark of our American constitutional structure. It is crucial to our system of checks and balances and furthers the interests of democracy.

We are writing to express our grave concern regarding President Donald Trump's repeated disparaging statements attacking judges and the courts, including the President's public criticism of United States District Court Judge James L. Robart in connection with a matter pending before Judge Robart, State of Washington et al. v. Trump, et al., (W.D. Wash., Case No. C17-0141JLR), in which the President, in his official capacity, is a party.

Judge Robart issued a legal ruling on February 3, 2017, restraining the operation of certain provisions in the President's January 27, 2017 Executive Order concerning travel restrictions on entry into the United States. Judge Robart reached his determination after considering the evidence and written legal arguments and after hearing oral argument by all parties. Feb. 3 Order at 1-2.

Judge Robart determined that he had jurisdiction, that the States of Washington and Minnesota were likely to succeed in showing that the Executive Order would cause irreparable harm, and that the States also were likely to succeed on the merits of their claims that portions of the Executive Order are unlawful. Feb. 3 Order at 4.

President Trump reacted to this ruling with a tweet referring to Judge Robart as a "so-called judge," calling the February 3 Order "ridiculous," and asserting that the ruling will be overturned. President Trump later tweeted that the public should "blame" Judge Robart and "the court system . . . if something happens." Following oral argument in the Ninth Circuit expedited appeal of Judge Robart's February 3 Order, the President suggested that the hearing had been "disgraceful."

Supreme Court nominee Neil Gorsuch has criticized personal attacks on judges as disheartening and demoralizing. A February 7, 2017 letter signed by 145 lawyers, including former federal prosecutors, partners at major law firms, former Supreme Court and other federal court law clerks, from California to New York and Pennsylvania to Texas asked the Acting Attorney General and Acting Solicitor General of the United States to advise the President to stop such attacks. The American Bar Association has made clear that such personal attacks are unacceptable.

Despite this, on February 9, 2017, White House press secretary Sean Spicer asserted that the President would not refrain from personal attacks on judges (White House press office transcript: “Question: In other words, the President will continue to speak like this. MR. SPICER: Of course he will.”).

Later that day, a three-judge panel of the Ninth Circuit, in a unanimous per curiam opinion, affirmed Judge Robart’s February 3 Order.

The President’s tweets concerning Judge Robart and the Ninth Circuit panel represent baseless personal attacks on sitting federal judges based on a substantive disagreement on a legal issue in a case in which the President himself is a party.

The President’s comments spread misunderstanding about the role of judges in a constitutional democracy, with potentially grave consequences.

Each federal judge takes an oath to administer justice fairly. They promise to “do equal right to the poor and to the rich, and [to] faithfully and impartially [apply] the Constitution and laws of the United States.” Their role is to rule on the cases that come before them based on the law and facts presented.

There is no basis for the President’s suggestion that Judge Robart, in issuing his February 3 Order, did anything other than decide the matter before him to the best of his ability. There is no basis for the President’s suggestion that the Ninth Circuit panel, in actively questioning lawyers at oral argument, did anything remotely out of keeping with their obligations. There is no basis to believe that any of these judges has acted other than according to their best judgment of what the Constitution and the laws of the United States require.

The President’s personal attacks—particularly to the extent they suggest that any judicial action against the President’s initiatives will trigger a personal and vindictive response, including efforts to publicly vilify individual judges and the court system as a whole—are a wholly inappropriate assault on the independence of the judicial branch and the values of our Constitution.

We strongly value our country’s system of federal trial and appellate courts, with independent judges who have been nominated by a President and confirmed by the Senate to administer justice fairly. Our federal appellate circuit courts review decisions of the trial courts of each district of the United States. The circuit courts have the power to determine if a district court judge’s legal rulings are right or wrong and to reverse any such ruling when an error of law affects the outcome. If a party, including the President, disagrees with a ruling of a district court judge, that party can seek review in an appellate court; if the party remains unsatisfied, the party can ask the Supreme Court to review the case. It is that process on which individuals, corporations, and government officials rely for the fair administration of justice. But in our system of government, we should not abide the most powerful executive official in the country demeaning and disparaging the judiciary through personal attacks on sitting federal judges or by casting aspersions on the federal courts in order to instill fear.

Because judges are ethically constrained from responding directly to such conduct, we feel it is necessary for the legal community to speak up on the matter and call, in as clear a voice as possible, for the President to retract his comments and to refrain in the future from personal attacks on judges in all matters. We ask that you please join in our request and call on the President to do the same.

Sincerely,
